1648Tight Git*@ The Edmund Tilney, Leatherhead*10/11/2015

It is totally acceptable to lose a few hares on the run, but losing a few before it is a little irresponsible. The pack took itself to the pub but the hare started from the car park. No damage done as everyone set off together taking a short cut to cut trail. Trevor and John were confused being unable to short cut the short cut. Leatherhead has its beginnings in about AD 1972 from which most of its architecture dates from. It was originally known as Leodridan meaning "dump where people get drunk and are sick" and it may have been mentioned in the doomsday book as "Leh-ver-ed" which means "dump where people get drunk and are sick". It was once the site of Pagan festivals and is now the site of much dogging. No change there then.

Nonetheless, a jaunt along the river and past the leisure centre ensued, where apparently people exercise properly !! the horror ! Then it was a good old hoof past the church and through the leafy lanes of south Leatherhead before crossing the bypass. An uphill climb stretched the pack, not literally, but metaphorically up to what would have been Stained street, described in the Surrey guide as an old Romany road used by travellers for many years to flytip. Now mostly used by middle class DOE types to learn the art of the teenage dawdle. In a route of gradually ascending house prices we peaked at Tyrells Wood, where the route looped north to take everyone back to the town centre where the poor people live. Or the Polish cleaners rent probably.

A good run of good length. The weather was perfect the trail well set and the chips chippy. With thanks to Wicked-pedia.

1649Master Bates*@ The Pelican, Addlestone*24/11/2015

On a dark and blustery night in Addlestone, Hurricane Barney blew through and loosened the few remaining leaves from the trees. A good mustering of hashers, new and old, gathered outside The Pelican in expectation of a Master Bates special, and they weren't disappointed!

The run took off towards Weybridge and the Thames with clever back checks we were navigated through the gravel pits, around the 'pick your own' farm and halted at a regroup. A 'What' I hear you say, yes WHHH had a 'regroup', due to technical reasons apparently.

The route took us right up to the hares' garden path, literally! and with keen front running from Worzel, the pack moved along at a pace whilst Doner yawned a lot and Kung Foo Panda dislocated a finger whilst on a relief stop! George (Italian Stallion) and Top Man had ulterior motives for getting back to the pub by 9 as there was a small matter of a football match going on, and the second half beckoned.

Globetrotting Mother Brown joined us for the first time this winter, arriving only 7 hours earlier from sunnier climbs, Jo was back and there was a welcome visit to the pub from Dr Death!

The icing on the cake was the return of the illusive hash Cheque book, return to the mismanagement by Sausage who made a rare appearance after the run.

Fat chips were served, some with cheese, before the happy band of hashers venture back out into darkness and made their way home, generously helped along by Barney.

The Great Bear

@ The Victoria, Oxshott

03/11/2015

There were two factions to the start of the run. Half met at the car park and the other half outside the Victoria. With only moments to go before the off we amalgamated into one swarm and went off into the woods of Oxshott Heath. A new runner (to us) started called "Shima" all the way from Ockley (the other side of Dorking) hopefully she will be on many more to come after hashing in Greece. Oxshott is where a survey in 2010 by the Daily Telegraph asserted it was "the village with most footballers" and according to Wikipedia, some scenes from the Monty Python feature film Jabberwocky (1977) were filmed in Oxshott Woods. Andy Murray of Davis cup fame is also a resident but any resemblance to a plank is coincidental.

Many wonderful sights of Chelsea footballers houses were seen all lit up and fake like a Arjen Robben dive in front of goal. We crossed the obligatory railway line not once but twice at Sheath's lane and Station approach. 5.34 miles and 1hr 16mins later we were back in the Victoria for the very last time before it transgresses into something ghastly. With pub reviews like "Lovely thai food!", "Excellent food and friendly service - even the dogs were catered for." and "Its a real shame, the bar lets down the restaurant inside." It is a shame too that we won't be back.

An almighty gathering tonight outside the pub, as everyone wanted to be involved in this run! Why? must be bad telly tonight, anyway, everyone is very welcome to join us! Visitors tonight were Christine from Shepperton, and her friend Lisa, back for a second time, ENJOY. Mother Brown, Master Bates, Wasser, Tosser, even Hash Cash Sausage, was here for this one. We went everywhere man, for this run, jointly created by Tracy & Pig Pen Matt, a well constructed route as you would expect, in good terrain, in the dark of Winter. Katie & Connor, Sophie & Dan, plus even Dingaling was back from his steaming hot adventures in Thailand!! Lucky lucky boy is he. Worzel was here too, always entertaining to all. Alan, Ruth, Linda & Mark enjoyed the run, really it was a case of who was not here tonight. The pub had some big Final Quiz night, with at least a 100 people competing, so we had a very convenient free run of The Garden Room, and ideal it was for us all. Wasser got very carried away with Dingaling's photos, so much so, we are not showing him anymore! Our Christmas Curry Spectacular is Tuesday 15 December in Byfleet, do NOT miss it.....book up with Kung Foo Panda.....no bribes accepted. NEW Run Sheet starts next week, so make sure you are there as Christmas is a coming.....ho ho ho. Jingle Bells, Jingle Bells. Jingle all the way.....I think Dingaling has already....ha ha
