1662Dingaling*@ The Coronation Hall, Surbiton*16/02/2016

A huge pub set on St.Mark's Hill, opposite the station, gave us the opportunity of a suburban run as the Winter is slipping away. Our Hare promised us some entertainment, more of that later ! Firstly we set off round some nice alleys, and on towards the River Thames, perhaps Predictably, but still nice, down The Queen's Promenade that runs to Kingston Bridge but then he surprised us and cut back inland, only to return to the water's edge later. We bombed round Kingston and back through the Fairfield, before coming up Surbiton Hill and some nice back roads and past the giant St.Marks Church for the on in. Good stuff. The pub, well that was good too, 10 London Ales were on tap, and we had a nice reserved area to scoff our chips in, but poor Briain arrived late, having fallen near his car, and cut and bruised his face poor fellow. Tip for dear Briain,....LOOK at the ground you are running on ! Drama ensued with 2 drunken louts outside, trying to cause trouble throwing glasses about, but the police did come along quite quickly and apprehended one of the unmentionables, and off to the Nick. Our night continued as we moved to The Surbiton Flyer, where there was no drama on offer, just good tasty beer. Tosser, Wasser, Briain, Dingaling and Len solved the world's problems in one night ! Hey ho. See you in Stoke D'Abernon for the next action packed run ! On On

1663The Great Bear*@ The Plough, Stoke D'Abernon*23/02/2016

Bit of a frosty night on Tuesday eve, but encouraged us to run a bit faster. A big pack turned up for The Great Bear's run, in expectation of ? We will see. Visitors tonight again were Christine & Lisa, welcome again, always good to see you both Their new names could be wait for it....Lemon Drop & Luscious Lisa.....sounds good eh ? Also Gorgeous George here before he sets off for Holland soon, we will miss your cheeky comments, and good company. This Run took in everything locally, many good alleys, churchyards, lakes , but thankfully no brown bears chasing us for food ! Cripes.....pew..... The big hitters were here, Pig Pen Matt & Tight Git Giles, and our old friend The Pro who runs with us twice every year for the last 10 years, over from his home in Madrid. Great to see you again, Buenas Noches ! Notable absentees were Spanish Mistress & Sodden Assetswhere are they both ? A cracking run.....resulting in a delightfully warm pub, with good beer, lagers and chips to munch on. Another Weybridge Hash to warm your heart.....Woo hoodon't miss next week, and no fallers tonight either, always good ! Dingaling is off on holiday to the hot spots again, aah....some peace at last. Lucky Boy for him though, check out Facebook, he he.

1664Pig Pen*@ The Old House at Home, Dorking*01/03/2016

For a start, parking problems. If anybody has to set another run from Dorking, use the town car park next to the church. It's free at that time of night. A very desperate pack assembled in the West Street car park where the run started from. Nowhere to leave one's mechanised horse at all . Fish & Chips, as the local denizen, knew a secret location to which she directed stragglers but it was a small pack that set off, swelling as latecomers caught up, and a bit of fresh blood to stir things up. Sheba and others took pole place to show the way On. The problem with Dorking is that all the hills are up. That's what we did. Up, by varied twisted routes to the fringes of Chart Park golf course, with admirable views, across the A24 and into Stony Wood. Then by tortuous routes westward back to the sort of car park. Actually a jolly gallop around Dorking of modest length for Pig Pen with very little shiggy. Once in the pub, the hare's showed the generous side of his nature. Sometimes hidden but who doubted its existence? A virtually non-stop stream of excellent, Grade 7+ chips flowed from kitchen to table. Any criticisms soon stilled by full mouths. A damned fine Pig Pen run of course.

1665Tosser*@ The Bell, East Molesey*08/03/2016

In the words of the great Terry Thomas "I say. Ding Dong" . We were off from the Bell in Molesey. Absent was our own little Ding (or the opposite) missing a run in what should be his spiritual home on so many levels. Have you tried the local Thai ? None the less it was pretty parky at the "gathering", with a few wimps (Tracy) hiding in her car until the last possible moment ! even Spanish Mistress and Mark turned up. Where have you been ? we have saved a few checks from previous runs for you. So you have a check backlog. Which sounds painful. Anyway I digress. So, on to the off. Out through the car park and a whizz through the posh houses down to the river. Then up to the bridge at Hampton Court. This is the fourth bridge on the site (not to be confused with the other one). It was designed by WP Robinson and the architect Sir Edwin Lutyens, so its like a well posh bridge innit ! And it replaced the previous "eyesore". How bad was that one !! Every hash is an education. Bemoaning the lack of shiggy our trusty hare then swung west over the Ember and found the longest muddiest track available to keep our shoes honest. A switch back over the Mole and then a scoot back to the start. Pigpen and Master Bates took a detour. And no they were not hunting Pad Mee ! Pub was good, and chips excellent. With a run like this, one day the Apprentice will become a Master. Oh. He already hasNewcomers tonight. Lawrie and Kate. Welcome. Oh and Good Luck George "Rook de shit, man".

1666Master Bates*@ The Plough, Horsell*15/03/2016

It was amazing to actually see the hare standing upright at the start of the run as we all know Master Bates penchant for falling over and milking sympathy (beer) out of the hash. Good to see some returnees and at muster a good number relinquished the warmth of their cars. So off we set for a run around Horsell Common, Woking and surrounding areas. I actually had no idea where we went! A good mixture of off road, on road, bridges, canals..... and lots of back checks. That darn flour is never where you expect it to be. Briain's constant torch flashing led to nearly an altercation with a large framed gentleman on a bike as it is very difficult to distinguish one flasher from another. We were promised a 5 mile. That distance came and went as we seemed to getting further away from the pub due to a detour to see WH3's very first GM, Ken Simmons.

Still the run continued and with the option of a short cut a desperation for liquid refreshment caused many to take it to get back to a packed pub who had moved their Wednesday Quiz night to a Tuesday! A good choice of beer and plenty of chips (for those who took the short cut).
